Fall conference in Las Vegas was fun and educational, but my favorite part about attending conferences is building connections with my fellow NAWIC sisters. Our fundraising table at the conference helped us to raise $730 for our chapter's general fund, which allows us to do things such as sponsor the Cougars Gone Wired robotics team, sponsor SCCCD, and reduce member costs to attend Installation. Our first membership meeting of our new year was learning about how the Becky Baker Foundation has been helping to provide free mammograms for women and supporting those affected by breast cancer. It was a great reminder for us all to get our annual screening. I'm truly excited about our November membership meeting, featuring Courtney Wilson, an Interior Designer, NCIDQ, IIDA, and Principal with Echo Architecture, sharing with us the design/build process of The Sluice along with a tour of the building. Remember, if there is a construction related topic and/or speaker you would like to see at a future membership meeting, feel free to email your ideas to boardmembers@nawic356.org. The month of November is always a reminder to be grateful, but I want to share that I'm grateful for all our chapter members throughout the year. You are all amazing women and the things that you accomplish for our chapter is something to be proud of. I hope you all have a wonderful Thanksgiving holiday and encourage you to practice gratitude throughout the year.

Block Kids

We had a pretty good turnout for our Halloween themed bowling event and earned a little less than $1300. We also received a generous donation of $250 from Bryan Construction. for our Block Kids event happening on January 25th, 2025, at Library 21C, by Chapel Hills.

Block Kids is a building competition for students in kindergarten through 6th grade. This is a national competition with local events hosted by NAWIC chapters around the country. During the competition, participants are given 100 micro interlocking building blocks, and may also choose up to three of the following supplemental items: a rock, up to 12" of string, a pre-measured square of aluminum foil, and/or a pre-measured square of poster board. They will be given 45 minutes to build a structure that can be lived in, worked in, or played in. After the participants have built their structures, judges select their favorites based on appearance and brief conversations with the builders. The top five participants in each age group (K-3 and 4-6) are then interviewed further and the structures are ranked based on the overall structure, participant knowledge, and creativity. Each of these ten "finalists" leave with a LEGO set. However, all of our participants do receive a certificate and a goodie bag. The structure of the student who receives the top score overall is then submitted to the regional building competition via pictures and descriptions of the structure. Regional winners are submitted to a national competition.

The purpose of this competition is to get young students thinking about future careers in the construction industry. And man, it's fun to watch their creativity flow as they build!

Flyers to past participants are being emailed out December 7th, and a courtesy reminder will be sent out January 4th.

We have room for 75 participants this year. We will need 10 judges, roughly 5-7 general volunteers, as well as donations for the snack table and goodie bags. We have a wish list on Amazon, https://www.amazon.com/hz/wishlist/ls/3F6K3EILHJCO5?ref=wl\_share that I will also share through email a few times before the event.

Thank you to the lovely ladies that have already donated.

We will be asking for help counting blocks and stuffing goodie bags on January 11th or 18th. Keep an eye on your email.

Please email blockkidspp356@gmail.com or NRKidd4PPC356@outlook.com with any questions and we will get back to you as soon as possible.

Community Outreach

NAWIC Pikes Peak 356 Quarterly Community Outreach

(October – December 2024)

We are into the fourth quarter of the year and we're still looking into a volunteer opportunity with those in an assisted living or possibly another volunteer opportunity. We will have our adopted "family" through the Patty Jewett Angel Tree the week of November 18. I will do my best to put together a shopping list on Giftster to shop for the kids and send it out by November 25 so that we can take advantage of the holiday sales. We are still planning on doing gift wrapping at the December holiday party based off delivery deadlines.

If you have any suggestions for local non-profit organizations to volunteer at or to support in the coming year, then please send your suggestions to anyone on the community outreach committee.

Suicide Prevention

It's challenging to address issues we don't even recognize as problems. For years, the construction industry was largely unaware that its workforce faced a suicide risk four times higher than the general population. Now that this alarming fact is known, it's our responsibility to raise awareness and take action to save lives. The construction sector has one of the highest suicide rates among all occupations, profoundly affecting workers, families, and communities.

Female construction workers, though fewer in number, face their own unique mental health challenges. Many of these challenges arise from their minority status, leading to feelings of isolation. They often confront gender stereotypes that impact their self-esteem and expose them to verbal and sexual harassment, unequal pay, and limited career advancement opportunities. Additionally, the male-dominated language and communication styles in the industry can leave them feeling excluded and make effective communication difficult. Compounding these issues is the significant stress of balancing work and home life- a struggle many women face daily. Given the demanding nature of construction work and the various challenges they encounter, female construction workers are particularly vulnerable to mental health issues.

Fortunately, like other workplace fatalities, suicides can be prevented. Everyone in the construction industry has a role to play in suicide prevention. Below are 4 things to know about preventing suicide.

1. Everyone can help prevent loss by suicide. Mental health and suicide can be difficult to talk about—especially with work colleagues—but your actions can make a difference. When you work closely with others, you may sense when something is wrong.
2. Know the warning signs of suicide. There is no single cause for suicide but there are warning signs. Changes in behavior (becoming withdrawn, acting anxious, agitated or reckless, misusing drugs or alcohol), mood, social media posts, or even what they say may signal someone is at risk. Changes in performance, like missing work or showing up late, not being able to think clearly or solve problems, being less productive and having increased safety incidents. Other warning signs come from what they say- talking about feeling trapped, wanting to die, feeling like they are a burden and saying it would be better if they were
- gone. It is also important to know what is going on in their lives- major life changes like children leaving home, divorce or breakups, death in the family, major illness or injury and financial issues can all put people at risk for suicide. Take these signs seriously. It could save a life.
3. Ask "Are you okay?" If you are concerned about a coworker, talk with them privately, be compassionate, and listen without judgment. Encourage them to reach out to your Employee Assistance Program (EAP), Member Assistance Program (MAP), the human resources (HR) department, or a mental health professional.
4. If someone is in crisis, stay with them and get help. If you believe a coworker is at immediate risk of suicide, stay with them until you can get further help. Contact emergency services or the 988 Suicide & Crisis Lifeline.

OSHA Alliance/Safety

The Construction Industry Alliance for Suicide Prevention (CIASP) was born out of necessity in response to statistics released in a CDC study ranking construction as the #1 industry for deaths by suicide. Established by the Construction Financial Management Association (CFMA) in 2016 to shatter the stigma surrounding mental health issues, CIASP became a stand-alone 501(c)(3) organization in 2018 to raise awareness about suicide prevention and provide resources and tools to create a zero-suicide industry by uniting and supporting the construction community.

Prevention and Intervention

These resources focus on building protective factors into the workplace that help employers address risk factors and recognize warning signs to reduce the likelihood that an employee attempts or dies by suicide. They are designed to focus on helping company leaders make suicide prevention a health and safety priority, arm the workforce with the knowledge to recognize warning signs, normalize conversations surrounding suicide and mental health, cultivate internal champions, create supportive networks, and clear up misconceptions.

Take Action

- Incorporate CIASP ToolBox Talks into your safety plan.
- Ask your Employee Assistance Program (EAP) provider to present sessions or lunch and learns on mental health and coping techniques.
- Promote the free, anonymous MindWise screening tool (available in Spanish) to your employees.
- Incorporate these short videos into your safety training.
- Distribute hardhat stickers, poker chips, and wallet cards with warning signs and helplines. Request a supply from CIASP.
- Display posters in trailers, break rooms, or on company message boards. Download here.
- Complete the LivingWorks Start online training program.
